W. P. WALTON.

DEMOCRATIC TICKET.

For Congress,

JAMES B. MCCREARY.

AFTER refusing the request of the county committee made through Col. Silas Adams to divide time with Judge R. J. Breckinridge, at Liberty, Monday, Congressman Wilson attempted to shut that gentleman out by speaking 2 hours and 40 minutes, but the judge was not to be outdone in that way, especially in his own bailiwick, so he sat patiently through the long harangue and then he let fly for some 40 minutes a charge of pure democracy which opened the eyes of those who had been taking in Mr. Wilson's specious, ex parte pleadings. The republican candidate charged that Mr. Howard is not a democrat, was not nominated by an authorized body and wasn't capable of representing the district if he could be elected. He defended the McKinley bill and the other iniquitous measures of his party and said that he was not only for the Force bill, but would like it better if it took from the States the entire control of all Federal elections. After getting through he gathered up his papers and left the court-room, followed by a few of his henchmen, but late as it was Judge Breckinridge succeeded in holding the larger part of the crowd and made a rousing speech that will tell in the coming election. It is a good thing that Wilson was not allowed to have things all his own way. He is a proxy and tiresome speaker, but is smart enough to know when to make a point and to elucidate it so clearly that the commonest intellect can take it in. We had an idea that Mr. Wilson is better than his party, but his speech at Liberty shows that he is even worse, if possible, than that aggregation of conspirators against the rights of the people. No democrat will vote for a man holding such views as he does and the more honest of his own party will repudiate him.

THE great con. con. is getting to be worse than a common, ordinary, everyday legislature. Because a few errors appeared in the reports of the speeches of the alleged great men who compose the body, they got into a stew and abolished all stenographic and printed reports and in other ways acted in a childish manner. So far as this abolition is concerned, it will be good news to the people who are footing the bill to preserve much of the matter, which is the veriest rot, and no tears will be shed over it. Nobody cares especially to read these speeches and it is a waste of money to print them. About two months have gone now and but little has been done to show for the expenditure of $800 or more a day. Delegate Bronston expressed the opinion of a majority of the people of the State when he told a Transcript reporter: "We are doing absolutely nothing. It is an expense that will not benefit the State at all. The greatest mistake that Kentucky ever made is ordering the constitutional convention; what little improvement could be made on the present constitution should have been made in 15 days."

SINCE the above was put in type, the convention repented of its hasty action and although it had been clinched by tabling a motion to reconsider, and under the pretense that it would have to pay the stenographer $35 a day for every day that the session lasted, a committee was appointed to consider the whole matter and report. The members cannot bear the idea of not having their efforts embalmed for future generations and they are trying their best to renig on their childish action.

THE democrats are often chided by thoughtless persons with the remark, "Your party didn't do anything for the people when it had the power." When, pray, did the democrats have the power to do anything in National legislation but to propose measures for the good of the people and fight for equal rights to all, exclusive privileges to none? There never has been a time, as Gov. McCreary very truthfully suggested in his speech, since Buchanan was president that the democrats have had control of the entire machinery of the government so as to remove the unjust legislation of the republican party. When they had the presidency and the House, the Senate stood like a stone wall against any measures of relief and there has been no time since the war that the democrats could make or repeal a single law. The sin, therefore, of omission cannot be charged against the party which believes in the government of the people by the people and for the people.

HON. JOHN G. WARWICK, the democratic candidate for Congress in McKinley's district, says he will beat the tariff juggler 2,000 votes or more, notwithstanding the Republican National Committee has sent $100,000 into the district. Mr. Warwick says that McKinley does not expect to be elected. He is blowing trumpets and beating drums and hopes to reduce the democratic majority and thus advertise himself for future party honors.

MR. HOWARD seems to think it is a sufficient honor for him to be the democratic nominee for Congress in the 11th district, and is, so far as we are informed resting on his oars. A live, energetic canvasser by a man who could portray all the evils that have resulted and will result from the continuation of the republicans in power, would reduce the republican majority in that district, especially in its present torn up condition, to a mere trifle. Bro. Howard ought to hump himself if he expects to reflect credit on his nomination. Wilson is letting no grass grow under his feet. The Middleboro man should follow his example.

ALL the indications point to the election of ten democratic Congressmen in this State next Tuesday. The alliance men and the republicans seem to have united in the 2d, but Mr. Ellis will beat the combination or we are very much mistaken. Mr. Carlisle has been speaking there and in his calm and matchless way has warned the farmers of the danger of putting their confidence in any man, who is not a clean-cut democrat. His speeches have been listened to by the thousands and have produced an impression that will show itself in Ellis' favor on election day.

THE last election for president showed that there were 100,476 more democrats in the United States than republicans, and recognizing that they are in the minority even more than ten times that number, the republicans have used their power in Congress far more to perpetuate their hold on the government than for the public good. You can help express for the conspirators next Tuesday the general disgust that is felt for their methods by voting for the democratic candidate for Congress.

THE McKinley tariff bill cuts off what little foreign market is left to the farmer for his surplus grain, while it increases the cost of goods he has to buy. It can thus easily be seen how great is the injustice done him by the government, which ought to protect him instead of the monopolists. If the farmers all over the country will do their duty next Tuesday, they will vote for the democratic nominees and show the republicans that they cannot be hoodwinked by their specious pleas.

THE McKinley tariff bill increases the duty on every article of the winter outfit and the New York World publishes a table to show that under it the clothing for a man, his wife and a boy, which last season cost $105.25, will sell for $135.10 this year. All over the country object lessons are being impressed upon the people in the increase of the necessities of life and convincing them that the tariff is not only a tax, but an onerous one.

OWING to the increased price of tin plate, produced by the McKinley tariff iniquity, the tomato canning factory at Greenwood, Ind., has reduced the wages of its men. This is the way it is going to be all over the country. Go to the polls next Tuesday and help to drive from power the party which enacted such a bill by casting your ballot for the man who fought it by speech and vote—Hon. James B. McCreary.

UP in Maine the other night a young negro killed a white man, when a mob quickly seized and hung him. It was an outrageous piece of business, but it happened in the wrong end of the country for much to be said about it. Only Southern outrages are paraded by the radical papers. This one don't count.

BOOKER REED having refused to submit his claims to a democratic primary, the committee has declared Henry S. Tyler the party's nominee for mayor of Louisville and the democrats will proceed to elect him. It is to be hoped that Mr. Reed will be shown that he is not a bigger man than the party to which he owes allegiance.

THE democrats are claiming Pennsylvania for their candidate for governor by 20,000 to 30,000 majority. Stranger things have happened, but we fear this is one of those things said to be too good to be true.

CONSTITUTIONAL CONVENTION.

THE attention of the con. con. is called to some admirable suggestions by our Lancaster correspondent.

THE convention will adjourn to-day until next Friday for the members to go home to vote. They will also draw their per diem to pay for their patriotism.

MR. MILLER offered a resolution requesting the county clerks to furnish the convention with a statement of the amounts paid by them to the jailers of their counties during each of the past 2 years.

A petition was read from the committee of the M. E. conference, in session at Barbourville, asking that every official shall be required to take an oath that he did not, in his canvass, obtain any vote by bribery, by use of money or liquor, and that no public moneys shall be permitted to be given to sectarian schools and no board of trustees shall consist of members of one religious denomination.

NORRIS WATTS, son of Edward Hannay Watts, of London, England, a capitalist, was shot through the groin by an unknown party while out hunting in the woods near Cumberland Gap. He is not expected to live.

CIRCUIT COURT.—In the case of Wright against the Cincinnati Southern for damages, the judge instructed the jury to find for the defendant, whose counsel subsequently moved for a new trial. W. A. Coffey sued Robert Barnett for selling him cholera affected hogs, but after hearing the evidence, Judge Morrow gave peremptory instructions for Barnett. John F. Higgins, as county attorney pro tem, sued the county for his per cent of a fine worked out by the defendant in the case, but the court of appeals having decided that there are no grounds for action in such cases, the suit was dismissed. Wm. Teaters pleaded guilty to maliciously wounding Marsha Newland and saved himself a year by it, the jury giving him four years instead of the full penalty, which a trial of the case would have assured. After several efforts at the Mart Smith case, for the murder of Oc Smith, the trial was finally commenced Wednesday afternoon. An examination of the standing juries failed to find a single qualified man and Judge Morrow ordered the sheriff to summon 40 men from Boyle to report yesterday evening. The prosecution is assisted by R. C. Warren and Robert Harding and the defense by Judge M. H. Owsley, Col. W. O. Bradley and Miller & Owsley. John W. Yerces, Esq., who represented Mr. Bradley in the last trial, assisted in selecting the jury as it was from mostly from his county.

The case of G. G. Wine against Hon. J. S. Owsley for $1,050 for a monument, was heard until noon yesterday, when the Smith case having precedence, it was continued till next Monday. It will be remembered that there were two monuments shipped to Mr. Owsley, one by order of Mr. Wine and the other by order of Mr. Francis. Mr. Owsley took the latter and claimed that he had not given Wine any instructions to ship. Wine claims that he had a well-understood contract and the suit is to decide which is right in the matter.

Only 7 jurors were secured from the Boyle county venire—W. B. Temple, J. C. Davis, Ed Flaig, J. W. McGinnis, T. M. Clarkson, J. R. Dodd and John Nash. S. Chandler and J. C. Carson, this county, were added and then the court stuck and ordered the sheriff to go to Boyle for 15 more men to report at 9 A. M. to-day.

The first snow of the season fell for a few minutes Wednesday and the weather continues to be disagreeable.

ALBERT ALLISON, a witness in the Mart Smith case, was arrested by Chief of Police Hill at Middlesboro and brought here yesterday.

CHURCHES in Lincoln and adjoining counties desiring the services of a good vocal music teacher would do well to consult J. M. Sibold, of this place.

The grand jury failed to find an indictment against old "Santa Claus" Dalton for robbing and burning the store of Jim Carter and he has been discharged from jail.

An Uncle Tom's Cabin Co. is prowling around over the State with a donkey and a couple of blood-hounds as the leading characters. The whole ship's crew ought to be driven to hades.

WHILE coming down a flight of stairs our old friend, Dr. Hawkins Brown, of Hustonville, missed his footing and fell headforemost, bruising himself up considerably and breaking a couple of fingers on his right hand.

A MATINEE will be given by the Mrs. Tom Thumb Co. at 2:30 to-morrow, Saturday, especially for the ladies and children. Come in and see the Lilliputians and the entertaining show that they give. School children will be admitted for 15 cents.

TO RECEIVE.—Invitations were received by a number of the friends of the family to the reception given Mr. and Mrs. George L. Penny by the groom's parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. R. Penny, last night, and the occasion promised to be an elegant affair.

ATTENTION HUNTERS.—Hon. R. C. Warren says the published Game Law is incorrect. Come to headquarters for breech and muzzle loading guns, powder shot and loaded shells, at low prices for cash, without any new tariff duties added. W. B. McRoberts.

TOWN SALES.—Mr. George H. Bruce has sold his house and lot on Lower Main street to John B. Foster for $3,500, possession to be given next June. W. H. Higgins sold John Ramsey a store-room on Lancaster street for $525. Mr. Ramsey will open a grocery and provision store.

MRS. TOM THUMB and her company appear to-morrow afternoon and evening at Walton's Opera House. It will be well worth the low admission to see the three midgots and their talented corps of actors. Mrs. Thumb is only 32 inches high and her husband and his brother are not much taller.

CAPT. WM. HERNDON, Commonwealth's Attorney, keeps a list of the jurors examined in every murder case and by turning to his book he can tell who have conscientious scruples, who are liable to acquit, &c. It is a first-rate plan and will save him a good deal of trouble in selecting future juries.

CAPT. ROCHESTER says the white cap article in our last issue, which told of his son Ed getting clubbed by masked men, was exaggerated. It was a scheme originated by the captain himself to make Ed stay at home at night by giving him such a scare he would be afraid to go down town. Ed got onto it, however, so the best laid plans gang aft aglee.

OUR people must not be deceived by the fact that our merchants have not raised the price of their goods since the passage of the McKinley bill. It is simply because they do not want to take advantage of their customers. All of them will tell you that they have been notified by the manufacturers and wholesalers that nearly everything will be materially increased. Ask W. H. Higgins how much the increase will be on cutlery, lamp chimneys, cigars and nearly everything that his firm handles.

THE FARMER'S HOPE.
PROTECTION PARODIED AND REDUCED TO AN ABSURDITY.

Protection for Farmers—How It Is Defended by Protectionists—The Laughable Results of Their Arguments Shown as in a Looking Glass.
[FIRST PAPER.]

The absolute dependence of the American farmer upon the protective tariff for all his prosperity has been so often demonstrated that it may seem superfluous to add anything to what has been already so well said by our illustrious president, by Senator Cullom, the late Judge Kelley, Hon. Robert P. Porter and such able journals as The American Economist, The New York Press, The Chicago Inter-Ocean, The New York Tribune, etc. Yet the insidious wiles of the Cobden club seem to make it necessary to recur to the subject again and again.

The American Economist, which is too little known among farmers, but which is published by that noble band of defenders of American industry, the American Protective Tariff League, in its issue of Feb. 14, 1899, had an article headed "Kansas Farmers Getting Rich," in which it showed by statistics what a resistless tide of wealth was flowing into the pockets of Kansas farmers, and how rapidly they were passing manufacturers and miners in the accumulation of riches.

Thirty years ago, under the free trade tariff of 1857, Kansas was a thinly peopled territory, the inhabitants of which did not reckon one man among them worth even half a million dollars. Today Kansas proudly boasts of her many millionaires, of her vast increase in population, of her numerous railroads, her handsome cities and other evidences of wealth. Kansas horses have increased in thirty years from 20,000 to 726,000, cattle from 93,000 to 2,580,000, sheep from 17,000 to 438,000. The value of farm animals alone is now over $14,000,000. What is the wealth of a Carnegie compared with this? And to what is this magnificent result due? Can any patriot, uncorrupted by foreign influence, hesitate to answer, "To the protection of American industry resolutely maintained by the statesmen of Kansas for the last thirty years?" Without the duties levied upon encroaching horses, cattle and sheep from abroad, how would it have been possible for the Kansas farmer thus to roll in wealth and luxury?

Captions free traders will of course say that this wealth is divided among many thousands of farmers, and therefore does not show that any one of them is really rich. Suppose this were so; is it not the boast of protected America that wealth is here divided among large numbers, instead of being concentrated among a few lordlings of the Cobden club? Free traders will next claim that much of the wealth of Kansas is concentrated in the hands of a few; that the fact of there being many millionaires proves that this is so; that the railroads are owned by eastern capitalists, and so on. They will point to the wealth of three or four such men, and claim that any one of these is worth more than the whole value of Kansas farm animals.

It must be conceded, however, that not all the farmers of our country enjoy the same measure of prosperity which The American Economist has shown to be the happy lot of the Kansas farmer. There is much complaint of low prices and poor returns. But it has been repeatedly shown that under the free trade tariffs of 1846 and 1857 so ruinous were the prices of western produce that corn was used as fuel in Iowa in 1858. Nothing could more conclusively prove the disastrous effects of the free trade policy. Rescued from that miserable condition, the Iowa farmer has found a ready market among the toilers of the loom and the anvil, who have been encouraged by a beneficent protection against foreign competition. Recently it has been alleged that corn has been burned in Iowa and Kansas for want of a market, and Congressman Kerr, of Iowa, a sound protectionist, stated in congress that this was no new thing, but had often occurred during the last twenty years.

This, no doubt, is the result of inadequate protection. Rates of duty which were sufficient twenty years ago are often insufficient now, and a wise policy demands a steady increase at recurring periods. Meantime it is consoling to read in the same champion journal already quoted, the American Economist, for April 25, 1899, that corn wisely used as a fuel and fertilizer has remarkable properties, and is a great improvement to the soil. In any case there is a vast difference between the burning of corn under free trade and under protection. Under free trade corn was burned because the farmer was too poor to send it to market. Under protection corn is burned because the farmer is independent enough to keep it out of market.

The fall in prices of farm products of which farmers complain is the direct result of their disregard of the advice which that noble defender of the protective cause, Hon. Jacob R. Dodge, has given them for more than twenty years. He has constantly urged them to plant less, pointing out that a large crop produces a smaller aggregate price than a small crop. Instead of forming an alliance, as manufacturers so wisely do, and limiting the acreage of their crops, farmers have gone on heedlessly from year to year, continually increasing their production. Every increase of demand, by raising for a time the price, has only tempted farmers to plant more and more, and so led them on to destruction. A wise application of the protective principle by restricting the production of food and making it artificially scarce will relieve American farmers from this embarrassment.

If this should seem impracticable relief may be obtained by a different application of the same beneficent principle. The new tariff, which promises to diffuse new blessings throughout the land, provides for bounties upon the growth of sugar and silk. Why not extend these bounties to all classes of farm products? A few cents paid out of the growing treasury of the republic on each bushel of wheat, corn and potatoes to the toiling farmers would encourage their industry and enable them to compete in foreign markets with the products of the pauper labor of India and Russia. Or, to promote our export trade and shipping, the freight of American grain exported in American ships could be paid out of the taxes levied upon foreigners by our judicious tariff.

It was one of the most profound and statesmanlike sayings of our illustrious president before his election that free traders were students of maxims, while protectionists were students of markets. Stung by this incisive and philosophical remark, free traders have lately been struggling to point out new markets to American farmers. Mr. Secretary Rusk and Mr. Statisticians Dodge met the issue by pointing out that Europe, to which free traders looked for a market for American wheat, is crowded with a population so poor that one-half of them, say 150,000,000, actually never taste wheaten bread and never have enough of anything to eat.

The free traders thereupon argued that if American farmers would break down the tariff barrier which now excludes the productions of these Europeans they would gladly buy American wheat in exchange, and thus give our farmers a new and large market. But right nobly answered Mr. La Follette, the representative of Wisconsin farmers on the ways and means committee, "In God's name, Mr. Speaker, is this the kind of market which they offer to the American farmer? What, indeed, can be more preposterous than to offer to American farmers the custom of 150,000,000 men who are always hungry? Is the high spirited American farmer to be degraded by selling his crops to a crowd of half starved paupers? Is he to give them food for nothing? Or, if they would pay for it by their own productions, shall the American farmer exchange his good, clean wheat for their dirty gewgaws and gimcracks?"

Take away the tariff and American farmers would be overwhelmed with a flood of foreign goods, which must speedily perish in the using, while their excellent wheat and provisions would have left this country never to return. Farmers' sons would be corrupted by the introduction of foreign luxuries, their wives and daughters would be spoiled by French silks and German woolsens.

We are already too dependent on foreign markets. The price of American wheat is fixed, so say the free traders, by the Liverpool market. They propose measures which, they say, will increase the purchasing power of that market. The consistent protectionist prefers to cut off that market altogether. Since the Liverpool prices are not satisfactory let us no longer sell in Liverpool. Let this great nation make its own market, and refuse any longer to be the slave or plaything of foreign grain speculators. This can be done in either of two ways. The nation can itself buy up all the grain which would otherwise be shipped to Europe, and keep it at home, or it can absolutely exclude all imported articles, thus preventing our foreign foes from obtaining our grain by refusing to receive anything in payment therefor.

It has been well pointed out by the most philosophical champion of the American system, Professor Denslow (for many years tariff editor of The Chicago Inter-Ocean, afterward tariff editor of The Philadelphia Press, Tariff League Bulletin, etc.), that that which costs nothing has no economic value. A market which costs nothing, therefore, has no value. The Liverpool market is given to us for nothing, and therefore it has no value. The American farmer, if he desires a really valuable market, must give something for it. This he does when creating a home market.

The tariff represents the price which he pays for a steady market; and, when he has thus created a market which did not exist before, he has a market of assured value, which has cost something to produce, would cost as much to reproduce, if once lost, and which is for that reason well worth having. If this home market is not entirely satisfactory the remedy is of course to make it more valuable. This can only be done by expending more upon its development. The more it costs the more valuable it will be. Whatever taxes or other burdens may be necessary for this purpose the farmer should cheerfully bear, since they are imposed only for his own benefit.

As a matter of course the farmer should also be secured in his possession of the home market, which is thus created mainly by his efforts. Foreign agricultural products should be excluded as rigidly as manufactures. The efforts of Maj. McKinley and his associates on the ways and means committee for this purpose deserve vigorous support. They state that they have devoted months to the study of this precise point; and they report that under the existing tariff of 1857 $356,000,000 worth of foreign agricultural products are annually imported. This injurious competition with the American farmer shows clearly how dependent he is upon protection, and how much he needs an extension of the protective system to his own products.

Of this total of $356,000,000, $227,000,000 consist of sugar, coffee, tea, cocoa, hides and raw silk. It must be admitted that Maj. McKinley's solution of the problem is a little difficult to follow, for he proposes to admit more than two-thirds of all that he enumerates as agricultural products free of duty, including all the articles here specified. Differences of opinion will, however, always arise upon such matters of minor detail, and a loyal support of our gallant leader, without regard to details, is the only wise policy. The great object of protection being to cheapen prices, it may be that the admission of two-thirds of all agricultural produce free of duty may tend to keep up the price and so to benefit the American farmer.

JONATHAN B. WARE.

Mrs. Catherine Sullivan, of Springfield, Ohio, who had grown unsettled in her mind over an exclusive diet of the Old Testament, had arranged to sacrifice her son after the manner of Abraham's scheme with his little Isaac. Now, Isaac was saved by the happy discovery of a ram that had been caught by his horns in the bushes, but the young Sullivan owes his present existence to the fact that an estimable relative knocked his mother down just as she was about to disembowel him with the family carving knife. That beats the ram all out, unless it be true, as Montaigne suggests, that the ram butted Abraham in the hip pocket.

Eighty thousand pounds of human hair, valued at $319, appear in the trade returns of Canton, and it could be wished that it did not, says our consul there, for as the majority comes from the heads of beggars, criminals and dead persons, it is not pleasant to think of its being worn by the ladies at home, even altho' it goes through long processes of purification before it is made into wigs, chignons, waterfalls, etc.—London Daily News.

"Hello! Tom. Glad to see you, old fellow! It's almost ten years since we were married. Sit down; let's have an experience meeting. How's the wife?"
"Oh! she's so-so, same as usual, always wanting something I can't afford."
"Well, we all want something more than we've got. Don't you?"
"Yes; but I guess 'want will be my master.' I started to keep down expenses; and now I'll say 'mean,' and she's tired of saving and never having anything to show for it. I saw your wife down street, and she looked as happy as a queen!"
"I think she is. I wish my wife was like her. I have to be. My wife can make a little go further than anyone I ever knew, yet she's always surprising me with some fairy contrivance that she gets out of her pocket for nothing, and she's always 'merry as a lark.' When I ask how she manages it, she always laughs and says: 'Oh! that's my secret.' But I think I've discovered her 'secret.' When we married, we both knew we should have to be very careful, but she made one condition; she would save for me. And she was right! I wouldn't do without it myself for double the subscription price. We read it together, from the title-page to the last word; the stories keep our hearts young; the synopses of important events and scientific matters keep me posted so that I can talk understandingly of what is going on; my wife is always trying some new idea from the household department; she makes all her dresses and those for the children; and she gets all her patterns for nothing, with the Magazine; and we saved Joe when he was sick with the croup, by doing just as directed in the Sanitation Department. I don't think I've discovered her 'secret.' What wonderful Magazine is it?"
"Demorest's Family Magazine, and—"
"What! Why that's what I wanted so bad, and I told her it was an extravagance."
"Well, my friend, that's where you made a grand mistake, and one you'd better rectify as soon as you can. I'll take your 'seeb,' right here on my wife's account; she's bound to have a china tea-set in time for our wedding next month. My gold watch was the premium I got for getting a club. Here's a copy, with the new Premium List for clubs—the biggest thing out! If you don't see it in what you want, you've only to write to the publisher and tell him what you want, whether it is a tack hammer or a new carriage, and he will make special terms for you, either for a club, or for part cash. Better subscribe right off and surprise Mrs. Tom. Only $2.00 a year—will save fifty times that in six months. Or send 10 cents direct to the publisher, W. Jennings Demorest, 15 East 14th Street, New York, for a specimen copy containing the Premium List."
